Modern slavery cases are managed by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) in 15 regional complex casework units, which handle cases that are substantial, complex or have an international element. The units can offer expert legal guidance to the police during a modern slavery investigation, including advice on cultural issues that may influence a case.

Crown Prosecution Service liaison magistrates

CPS liaison magistrates are prosecutors, judges or magistrates who usually work from the host country's Ministry of Justice. They facilitate and advise on extradition and mutual legal assistance between the host country and the UK, aiming to increase the speed and effectiveness of judicial cooperation.

They offer the UK police:

- help with drafting and transmitting letters of request \(LOR\) to the host country and vice versa
- updates about UK letters of request
- liaison with host country authorities to speed up the process
- advice on evidence and help to resolve conflicts of jurisdiction
- advice on executing European arrest warrants

CPS liaison magistrates are currently based in France, Spain, Italy, the USA, the United Arab Emirates and Pakistan.

The GLAA investigates offences of unlicensed gangmasters or gangmasters using unlicensed companies, where they may also be committing offences of modern slavery, and ensures that those who are licensed meet the standards set by the GLAA in order to retain their licence. It regulates the activities of gangmasters in the agriculture, horticulture, shellfish gathering, and food and drink processing and packaging sectors, in accordance with the Gangmasters \(Licensing\) Act 2004. The GLAA:

- is a first responder to the national referral mechanism (NRM)
- can provide expert witness evidence on labour exploitation
- has 24/7 capability for urgent deployment of resources throughout an investigation including intelligence officers with foreign language skills and trained in Ministry of Justice (2021) Achieving Best Evidence (ABE) interviewing
- has financial intelligence capability
- can work alongside partner agencies in cases of joint interest or use GLAA officers to conduct enquiries in parallel where appropriate to do so

The GLAA is not empowered to investigate modern slavery offences specifically. These offences often run in parallel to the unlicensed provision of labour and can be identified by the GLAA enforcement and compliance functions.

Immigration Enforcement Command and Control Unit

Telephone: +44 (0)3000 134 999

This unit conducts checks on foreign nationals.

Home Office Immigration Compliance and Enforcement ? Risk and Liaison Overseas Network (RALON)

RALON operates from over 50 locations worldwide. It works to reduce cross-border crime into the UK, including human trafficking, by detecting and sharing intelligence on potential criminal activity at ports of entry, exit and transit. This information is disseminated to the UKVI and partner law enforcement agencies in the UK and abroad.

Over 100 RALON immigration liaison staff are posted overseas. The officers have trained carriers on routes that are commonly used by traffickers to enable them to identify perpetrators and their victims. They prevent inadequately documented passengers from travelling to the UK. The following countries have at least one RALON post:

Albania, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Brazil, China, Colombia, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Hong Kong, India, Italy, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Malaysia, Nepal, Netherlands, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, Serbia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Turkey, the United Arab Emirates, the USA, Vietnam, Zimbabwe.
