About this report

Objective

This objective of this report is to:

- report on outcomes regarding dismissals for the most serious discipline matters investigated, as well as dismissals for unsatisfactory performance and attendance
- establish opportunities to determine trends, inform wider learning, and improve integrity and public confidence

A gross misconduct investigation is one where, if the allegation is proven, it could result in dismissal.

Figures in this report

The figures contained in this report relate to regular police officers, members of the Special Constabulary and police staff members who were placed on the barred list due to being dismissed between 1 April 2023 and 31 March 2024.

Barred list information and legislation

The barred list (The Police Barred list and Police Advisory List Regulations 2017) was introduced by legislation effective from 15 December 2017. This replaced the previous College of Policing disapproved register, which was established on 1 December 2013.

The barred list legislation does not apply to individuals barred from non-Home Office forces or from other agencies. Data from the British Transport Police, the Ministry of Defence Police, the Civil Nuclear Constabulary, the States of Jersey Police and the National Crime Agency is not included in this report.

The barred list legislation requires Home Office forces to provide details to the College of Policing of regular police officers, members of the Special Constabulary and police staff members who have been dismissed while serving, or after having retired or resigned. When the barred list legislation came into effect, a change in police regulations permitted officers to retire or resign while under gross misconduct investigation. The same legislation (The Police \(Conduct, Complaints and Misconduct and Appeal Tribunal\) \(Amendment\) Regulations 2017) allows forces to continue conduct proceedings even when an officer has left the force and to find that the officer would have been dismissed if they were still serving.

There is no legislation that prevents members of police staff from retiring or resigning while under investigation for gross misconduct. Forces are not under a regulatory obligation to hold post-employment hearings. It is up to the force to decide whether such a post-employment hearing, convened according to local employment practices, should be held to determine if the individual would have been dismissed and should be placed on the barred list.

Breaches of standards of professional behaviour

Table 4 presents the different breaches of the standards of professional behaviour, as outlined in Schedule 2 of the Police \(Conduct\) Regulations 2020, that were recorded for the dismissals of regular police officers.

The number of reasons recorded (1,339) was greater than the number of officers dismissed (593), because several breaches of the standards of professional behaviour can be recorded for a single dismissal. All categories were based on descriptions of the misconduct found at the hearing and reported to the College.

Breaches of standards of professional behaviour

Table 9 presents the different breaches of the standards of professional behaviour, as outlined in Schedule 2 of the Police \(Conduct\) Regulations 2020, that were recorded for the dismissals of Special Constabulary officers.

The number of reasons recorded (59) was greater than the number of officers dismissed (30), because several breaches of the standards of professional behaviour can be recorded for a single dismissal.

All categories were based on descriptions of the misconduct found at the hearing and reported to the College.

Breaches of standards of professional behaviour

Table 13 presents the different breaches of the standards of professional behaviour, as outlined in the Police Staff Council joint circular no. 54, that were recorded for the dismissal of police staff.

The number of reasons recorded (435) was greater than the number of staff members dismissed (233), because several breaches could have been recorded for each dismissal. All categories are based on descriptions of the misconduct found at the hearing and reported to the College.

Table 13: Categories of the breaches of the standards of professional behaviour by police staff placed on the barred list between 1 April 2023 and 31 March 2024

Reasons for police staff dismissals

Table 14 presents the categories that were recorded for the dismissal of police staff. Categories will change yearly based on the misconduct reported.

The number of reasons recorded (319) was greater than the number of police staff dismissed (233) because some categories overlapped into others. All categories were based on descriptions of the conduct that were reported to the College.

Year-on-year breaches have not been added, as categories change. See previous annual reports with this information.

Publication of information

The legislation requires the College to publish specified information in relation to officers and former officers (including members of the Special Constabulary) who are dismissed for gross misconduct, as outlined in The Police Barred List and Police Advisory List Regulations 2017. The legislation does not provide for the publication of specified information relating to police staff members who are similarly dismissed.

The College must not publish any of the specified information in instances where publishing some or all of that information:

- would be against the interest of national security
- might prejudice the investigation or prosecution of a criminal offence or any civil proceedings
- would result in a significant risk of harm to any person

Of the 2,093 regular police officers and members of the Special Constabulary placed on the barred list following a gross misconduct dismissal, 51 officers were granted exemptions relating to the points above. Most of these names will be published in the future following the conclusion of criminal or civil proceedings where there is no longer a risk of prejudice to ongoing investigations.
